Remembering Fromelles

19th July - Opening of Fromelles cemetery

More than 90 years after the Battle, the Fromelles cemetery will be officially opened on the 19th of July 2010.

The bodies of British and Australian soldiers who died during the Battle of Fromelles in 1916 were recovered from the battlefield by the Germans and 250 were buried in six communal graves near Pheasant Wood on the outskirts of the northern French village of Fromelles. This day also marks the 94th anniversary of the Battle of Fromelles and will see the reinterment of the last of the 250 soldiers who had lain undiscovered at Pheasant Wood since 1916.

Fromelles is a village in the Weppes country just 20 minutes drive from Lille. Lille tourist office have just launched a remembering tour from Lille to Fromelles. Every Sunday until 26th September.

Douai city pass at low price

This summer you can purchase a Douai Pass for a special low price, combining guided tours of the belfry and the town hall with its carillon and the audio-guide tours of the town.

There are five such tours (available in English), focussing on the historic town centre, the course of the Scarpe, the Flemish character of Douai, its French heritage and modern Douai in the 19th and 20th centuries.

In July and August you can get the Pass at a specially reduced rate by quoting "belfry" when buying: adults 7 €, children 4 €.
